

Prophet Musa (as) Prophet Musa (as) was resting beneath a tree in Madyan (in the Arabian Peninsula). He had walked all the way from Egypt, looking for a safe place to live, and he was tired and hungry.

Musa (as) watched as a group of shepherds approached a nearby water well. The men all pushed their sheep forward so they could drink first. Meanwhile, two sisters were holding back their own sheep, to avoid all the pushing and pulling. Their father was an old man, so they were in charge of the hard work of shepherding.

Musa (as) was a tall and strong man – so he knew he could help out! He quickly led the sheep forward and, when they had quenched their thirst, he sat under the shade of the tree again and made a du'a.

Musa (as) had not brought any food with him and he had nowhere to sleep. But later that day, one of the women came back! She said,

'My father invites

The Prophet Shu'aib (as)! Seeing how strong and trustworthy Musa (as) was, he offered him a job taking care of the sheep. Later, Musa (as) even married one of his daughters.

the man who had sat with nothing under that tree, with nowhere to go, suddenly had a loving family and a hopeful future.

And a little while later, he was one of the great prophets.
